

BROCADE

Dear Rich Marsh and Dale Carnegie staff,

I recently attended the 2-day High Impact Presentations course and wanted to provide some feedback on the course in general, content and training staff.

The course was excellent and truly built and capitalised on the skills that I already possessed whilst at the same time highlighting any 'development' areas in a positive manner.

The course format was very good and particularly suitable for my type of learning style. The modular approach to teaching each key presentation area/topic in turn was very stimulating and interesting which kept the focus and momentum at all times.

The training staff were also of an excellent quality and caliber and were able to relate and link exercise activity back to the 'working world' which gave the training content more substance and credibility. In particular Hitesh Patel was able to demonstrate knowledge and experience from industry/business which is always valued and

I highly recommend this course to anyone who needs to present/facilitate to either a small or large forum/audience. It was an excellent investment of both time and my organisations cost. I look forward to undertaking any other training or personal development opportunities Dale Carnegie may be able to provide.

Best Regards,

John McNally
